“ Jimmy was my baby brother. He was a brat when he was little but my sister and I are to blame. We spoiled him. Then he meant Vicky and grew up. So proud of him.

“ I knew James for only a few years but what i realized was not only was he an exceptional Emergency Room Nurse but sincerely a good man. Not only did he love the people he served in the Emergency room but he loved his business team and community. But even more than that, it was very apparent that he loved his wife and children with all of his heart. He was a professional and he was always respectful and kind towards me as a peer as well as others. Those were the things i knew about James Warren. He cared for my father just before getting sick and without asking made several attempts to contact me in regards to how my father was doing after the fact. That meant a lot to me. I wish i had known him better. I regret this. I believe good people should fellowship with good people and James Warren was a Good man. I just hope his wife and children realize that what James did as a career was not an ordinary job. Being a paramedic and then being an Emergency Room RN allowed him to touch the lives of thousands upon thousands of people directly and even more indirectly in a very positive way. The World lost a very special man. My heart goes out to his wife and children. He will be missed but he will always be remembered.

“ I've known James for about 25 years and it wasn't long enough. Vicki and I shared an office at our first professional job and became fast friends. They honored me as the Godmother of Channing and though I moved from Arlington many moons ago, the Warren family has always been near and dear in my heart. I am in awe of the life they built together, the children they have raised and all the lives forever touched by their fellowship and love. James... my friend... you were perfectly imperfect and a testimony to what being a good man means. Grief is reserved for those left behind, for you are reunited with our Lord in the glories of Heaven! Rest well for a life well-lived.

“ I met James about one year ago. I took his shift when he was promoted to manager, but didn't see him much until this year when he returned to work day shift. I really enjoyed visiting with him about life in general and will really miss him and our talks. It was a blessing to be able to hug him goodbye. Debbie McNairn
